INDIA EASES FOREIGN INVESTORS' ACCESS TO INTERNATIONAL FINANCE HUB

India's market regulator eased rules for foreign investors to trade in securities at a new international finance centre, stepping up competition with markets such as Singapore and Dubai that are seen as more investment-friendly. The government has been trying to lure foreign investors to Gujarat International Finance Tec-City, or GIFT City and offers close to zero tax, dollar contracts, and top-notch infrastructure.

The markets regulator Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) allowed most foreign investors to route their orders for trading at GIFT City through segregated nominee account providers without having to register themselves.

Earlier, overseas investors had to follow a cumbersome registration process or stringent know-your-customer rules to be able to trade at the international finance centre.

ISLAMIC ARCHITECTURE IN INDIA - RAMADHAN SPECIAL

Bara Imambara, Lucknow

Also known as Asfi Inambara named after the Nawab of Lucknow who commissioned the structure. Bara means big and Imambara meaning shrine, it is one of the largest Islamic Architecture in India and an important place of worship for which people gather here on every religious festival. Ramdan being the most celebrated festival witnesses a crowd of large numbers accumulating the courtyard to offer prayers and celebrate 'iftar' with loved ones. The last day of Ramdan and the day of Eid are the busiest day here with people bustling about wishing each other while the make shift shops put up an exhibition of food and crafts for sale.

The architecture of Bara ImambaraSource: https://www.holidify.com/blog/ramdan-places-to-visit/, though on the lines of Indo-Islamic architecture is actually quite unique. The central hall of Bara Imambara is said to be the largest arched hall in the world. But what makes it unique is that the blocks used to construct are of the interlocking system with absolutely no use of girders and beams. Till date the roof stands strong without any pillars to support it. Apart from this, Bara Imambara is known for its Bhulbhulaiya – an incredible maze, located at the upper floor and the only way to find your way out is with a guide. It leads to top of the monument from where you can see a panoramic view of the city of Lucknow.

Taj Mahal, Agra

It is impossible to talk about Islamic Architecture in India and not mention Taj Mahal – an ode to art as much as it is to love. The white marble dome of the Mausoleum is one of the most recognized structures in the world. However, little is known of the minarets that stand beside it. Minarets weren't a common feature of Islamic architecture until the 17th century and Emperor Shah Jahan had a big contribution towards it. Shah Jahan's idea behind the structure was to create a replica of the house of the departed in paradise on earth. The constant changing color of the structure because of the light that falls on the marble isn't a lucky coincidence but was a deliberate attempt to feature the light of god for light is a Moghul metaphor for God. Another feature that stands out in the structure is the calligraphic use of passages from the Holy Book of Quran that is used as decorative elements on the structure.

Tourists flock the place all throughout the year, most visit especially during Ramdan for the promise of scrumptious food that is prepared by small stalls and huge restaurants all offering their very best. Apart from this, the Taj Mahal takes on a different hue during this month with the hustle and bustle of the festivities. If the sight of the Taj Mahal itself wasn't enough, then the thousands of people gathered together, bowing their heads down in gratitude only reaffirms the power of faith among people.
